

Nature

By Emily S.

Burst of rays upon your face,
Go and feel its warm embrace.

Gusts of wind go round and round,
Listen to that whipping sound.

Smell the dandelions in the sun,
Yet the fun has just begun.

Honeysuckle, gooey and sweet,
Makes a delicious, natural treat.

Butterflies fly upon the air
As if in the world they had no care.

Over the horizon the sun does peek,
As little bunnies play hide and seek.

Fireflies begin their evening flight,
Flashing the signal of the night.

Sparkling stars above your head
Watch over you as you sleep in bed.
